Elemental Theatre announces its third annual summer production – *Outbursts! 3: The End of the World Cabaret

(Tiverton, RI) – This summer, Elemental Theatre takes on global warming, nuclear obliteration, Armageddon, the Rapture and the Fall of Civilization. Conceived, written and directed by the members of Elemental Theatre, The End of the World Cabaret is an irreverent look at the stuff that keeps us up at night.

Producer David Rabinow wanted Elemental’s third annual short play festival to have a unified theme, and challenged the Company to create an entire cabaret of original material. “We found that many of us had been simultaneously teasing the edges of a similar idea – call it, The End of All Things,” adds co-producer D’Arcy Dersham. “We decided to embrace the zeitgeist, and weave together all of these short plays, monologues and songs into one evening of darkness and light.”

This is Elemental’s third summer at the Meeting House in Tiverton Four Corners. In what has become an annual event, The End of the World Cabaret promises to be a witty political satire, full of music, fun and unexpected surprises. Join us for an evening of music and laughter as we toe the edge of the abyss, stare resolutely into the darkness, and proclaim, "What? Me, worry?"

Praise for Elemental’s previous work:

Outbursts! 2 (Summer, 2005):

The Providence Phoenix called our second annual short play festival “outrageous,” “fun,” “delicious,” “hilarious,” and “a knee-slapper.”

A Bright Room Called Day by Tony Kushner (October, 2005):

Motif praised the “strength of the acting,” the “energy” of the production, and gave “credit [to] the entire cast” for its “commitment” and “astounding climax.”

Nominated for Best Production, Best Director, and Best Actress, 2005 Motif Theatre Awards.
